The Hall mill, which shelters four silk working firms, was the next point of attack. A single policeman guarded the main entrance. He was ordered to stand aside, and, on refusing, he was attacked. He drew his revolver and began to fire. Lora Salvino, an Italian, 24 years old, who lives and works in Hackensack, received the first buliet, which penetrated both lungs. The mob drew back, and the policeman regained his post in the doorway. Several shots were fired at him, but none took effect. He replied, firing directly into the crowd until his weapon was emptied, when seven more uniformed men and one in plain clothes came on a fifty hats were picked up in the street afterward, which were lost in the wild scramble to get away.

Firemen Come to Rescue. It was about this time that Mayor Hinchcliffe called on the firemen for aid. Men were detailed from each company and armed, and during the afternoon rendered efficient service.

The shooting seemed to scatter the rioters, but it was not long before a dense mob had formed again, this time about the Gaede mill on North Straight street, where there was a crowd of 2,600. Half of them were rioters and the rest onlookers. The mill was bombarded, and before the mob stopped there was not a whole window in the building.

As he fell men rushed on him and he was kicked and beaten. He drew his revolver and tried to use it, but it was kicked from his hand. A man grabbed it and fired at Harris, the bullet entering his chest. He has a slight chance of recovery. By this time the mill was empited of the operatives, and this practically ended the rioting for the day after all the mills had closed down.

Posse Gives Up Chase After Convicts-Farmer Boys After Reward.

Vaucouver, Wash., June 18.—The search for Harry Tracy and David Merrill, the escaped convicts from the Oregon pententiary, so far at least as the armed posse which has made this city its head-quarters for the past three days is concerned, has been abandoned for the time being and the majority of the officers, detectives and militiamen returned here this evening weary from their long vigil and chagrined over their failure to bring down their human game. Nothing has been seen of the fugitives since yesterday evening when they passed Nicholany evening when they passed Nichol-son's farm near Ploneer on horseback. The general opinion among the pursuers is that the outlaws are still in the woods south of Lewis river. A close watch has been kept at all crossings of the river and the officers do not believe that the desperadoes crossed the stream last night or today.

Demands Supper at Camp.

Broof that the convicts are in the timber along Lewis river came today in a report by a man named Lindsley, who runs a logging camp in that vicinity. He informed the officers that the convicts appeared at his place in the woods late last evening and demanded supper, which was given them.

After supper they went away, but in which direction the informant could not tell. This story was repeated here by returning members of the posse tonight and its truth is not vouched for by any one in authority. It is also reported by Detective Kerrigan of Portland, who returned here tonight, that Sheriff Huntington of Cowlitz county, between which and Clark county the upper fork of Lewis river is the dividing line, has taken up the search on the north side of the river and has posted men to guard all crossings, while Sheriff Marsh still maintains armed watchers on the Clark county side of the river.

The dynamite stored in the powder fleet is simply the reserve for use in this city. Much dynamite is exported from New York, but it is taken directly to the steamships. Only freighters with magazines carry cargoes of dynamite and high explosives. It is forbidden by international law for passenger vessels to carry such cargoes. After a vessel has been loaded at her dock with her non-explosive cargo she is anchored off Gravesend bay, where her load of dynamite is taken from a tug and stored away in her magazine.

Most of the dynamite used hereabouts is made at factories in the Ramapo mountains, and just enough to supply the immediate demand is stored in the powder fleet. The powder boats are anchored about two miles from shore, and their stores are received from tugs that run up alongside of them. The sticks are packed in sawdust in wooden boxes, and the process of loading a powder boat consists simply in passing the boxes from one man to another from the tug down into the hold of the powder boat.

"Suppose one of the men should drop a box?" was asked of a man whose business has always been the handling of high explosives.

"Nothing would happen," he replied.

OFFERS $30,000 REWARD.

Raleigh, N. C., June 18.—Governor Ayock today offered rewards aggregating 330,000 for the arrest and conviction of unknown persons who on the night of June 11 took the negro Gillespie from the jail at Salisbury and lynched him. There were about seventy-five men in the party and the governor offers a reward of $400 for each of them. It is understood that evidence has been found tending to show that the negro was innocent.

The holds of the powder boats are fitted up with shelves, where the boxes are placed securely, according to grades.

When on board the men wear felt shoes or in summer go barefooted. Smoking is rigorously prohibited, but that is not a hardship for the men, who have the sail-or's preference for chewing.

No intoxicating liquors are allowed on board, and if the officers of the powder companies learn that one of the crew has got drunk, even ashore and off duty, they have no more use for him. He obtains unsolicited and permanent leave.

There is always one member of the crew of a powder vessel on lookout duty.
